Focus on Authors

Albert B. Bemmaor ("The Impact of Heterogeneity and Ill-Conditioning on Diffusion Model Parameter Estimates") is Professor at Ecole Supérieure des Sciences Economiques et Commerciales (ESSEC), Cergy-Pontoise, France. He received an M.B.A. from Columbia University and a Ph.D. from Purdue University. His work has appeared in the Journal of Marketing Research, the Journal of Consumer Research, Marketing Science, and Marketing Letters, among others. His current research focuses on applied probability models, the econometrics of store-level scanning data, and the predictive accuracy of household-level purchase intents. He is on the Editorial Board of the International Journal of Research in Marketing and Recherche et Applications en Marketing.

Haipeng (Allan) Chen ("Close Encounters of Two Kinds: False Alarms and Dashed Hopes") is an Assistant Professor of Marketing at the University of Miami. He received his B.Eng. (honors) in Mechanical Engineering from Shandong Institute of Engineering (Zibo, China), his M.A. in Applied Linguistics from Zhejiang University (Hangzhou, China), and his Ph.D. in Business Administration from the University of Minnesota. Chen conducts research in the area of Behavioral Decision Theory (BDT), and his research interests focus on examining the information-processing and decision-making processes of individuals and managers in the traditional marketplace, as well as in the electronic marketplace, and on identifying cross-cultural differences in those processes. His research has been accepted by and presented at various conferences, including the Haring Symposium in 1999, the Midwest Marketing Camp in 2001, the Association for Consumer Research (ACR) 2000 Conference, and the 2002 North American Winter Meeting of the Econometric Society. This is his first publication in a major marketing journal.

Yuxin Chen ("Consumer Addressability and Customized Pricing") is Assistant Professor of Marketing at New York University. He holds a B.S. in Physics from Fudan University, an M.S.B.A. from Washington University, and a Ph.D. in Marketing from Washington University. Before becoming interested in marketing, he studied computer science in the Graduate School of Zhejiang University. He has previously published his work in marketing science. His current research projects focus on issues relating to e-commerce, high-tech marketing, individual-level marketing, and retailing strategies.

Peter J. Danaher ("Optimal Pricing of New Subscription Services: Analysis of a Market Experimentation") is Professor and Chair, Marketing Department, University of Auckland, New Zealand. He has a Ph.D. in statistics from Florida State University and an M.S. in statistics from Purdue. His primary research interests are media exposure distributions, advertising effectiveness, television audience measurement and behavior, customer satisfaction measurement, forecasting and sample surveys, resulting in many publications in journals such as the Journal of Marketing Research, Marketing Science, the Journal of Marketing, the Journal of Advertising Research, the Journal of the American Statistical Association, the Journal of Retailing, the Journal of Business and Economic Statistics, and the American Statistician. He has consulted extensively with Telecom, Optus Communications, Unilever, AC Nielsen, and other market research companies. He is also the survey auditor for the television ratings service in New Zealand and has recently completed audits of the Australian and Irish peolmeter systems.

Skander Essegaier ("Pricing Access Services") is Assistant Professor of Marketing at The Stern School of Business, New York University. He holds a B.Sc. in Statistics and Economics from the Ecole Nationale de la Statistique et de l'Administration Economique (France), an M.Sc. in Mathematics from the University of London, and a Ph.D. from Columbia University. His current research interests include competition and strategic behavior, competitive pricing in access service markets, as well as personalization and Internet marketing. He has previously published in the Journal of Marketing Research, the SIAM Journal on Control and Optimization, and the Journal of Applied Probability.

Sunil Gupta ("Pricing Access Services") is Meyer Feldberg Professor of Business at Columbia Business School. His current research is in the area of pricing, cross-category purchase behavior, and lifetime value of customers. He serves on the editorial boards of the International Journal of Research in Marketing, the Journal of Marketing, the Journal of Marketing Research, and Marketing Science. He is an academic trustee of the Marketing Science Institute.

Ganesh Iyer ("Consumer Addressability and Customized Pricing") is Assistant Professor at the Haas School of Business, University of California at Berkeley. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Toronto. His research interests include coordination in distribution channels, customer information and its effects on markets, and Internet institutions and their market impact. His previous research has appeared in Marketing Science.

Janghyuk Lee ("The Impact of Heterogeneity and Ill-Conditioning on Diffusion Model Parameter Estimates") is Assistant Professor Marketing at Groupe HEC in France. He received a B.A. from Seoul National University in Korea (International Economics) and an M.A. and Ph.D. from ESSEC in France. Before joining Groupe HEC, he worked for Samsung Electronics European Headquarters as a Senior Market Analyst and Project Manager. His research interests include new product development strategy, pricing strategy, and customer lifetime value management. He shares research intuition coming from contemporary artwork with his wife, Sooyoung.

Akshay R. Rao ("Close Encounters of Two Kinds: False Alarms and Dashed Hopes") is Carlson Term Professor of Marketing at the University of Minnesota's Carlson School of Management. He holds an undergraduate honors degree in economics from Loyola College, Madras, a postgraduate diploma in Business Management from XLRI Jamshedpur, and a Ph.D. from Virginia Tech. His previous research on pricing, brand management, and information economics as it relates to consumer behavior and marketing strategy has appeared in the Journal of Business, the Journal of Consumer Research, the Journal of Marketing, the Journal of Marketing Research, Harvard Business Review, Sloan Management Review, and other journals. A member of the editorial review board of the Journal of Marketing, a recipient of the Ferber award at JCR, and the Maynard award at JM, Akshay Rao has held visiting positions at M.I.T. and the Hong Kong University of Science & Technology.

Jan-Benedict E. M. Steenkamp ("Identifying Spatial Segments in International Markets") is the Center Research Professor of Marketing and the GfK Professor of International Marketing Research at Tilburg University (the Netherlands). He is also Honorary Professor at the European Institute for Advanced Studies in Management (Brussels) and Davidson Institute Research Fellow at the University of Michigan Business School. He has held visiting positions at the Pennsylvania State University, the University of Michigan, and the University of Innsbruck. Current research focuses on effectiveness of marketing instruments (branding, price promotions, NPIs), international marketing, marketing research methods and techniques, and interorganizational relationships. His research has been published in the International Journal of Research in Marketing, the Journal of Consumer Research, the Journal of Marketing, the Journal of Marketing Research, and Marketing Science, among others. He is the former editor of the International Journal of Research in Marketing and serves on the editorial boards of the International Journal of Research in Marketing, the Journal of Consumer Research, and the Journal of Marketing Research.

Frenkel Ter Hofstede (Identifying Spatial Segments in International Markets) is Assistant Professor of Marketing at the Graduate School of Industrial Administration, Carnegie Mellon University. His research interests are in developing methodologies to solve problems in the areas of market segmentation, international marketing, and direct marketing. He has published in Economics Letters, the International Journal for Research in Marketing, the Journal of Classification, the Journal of Marketing, and the Journal of Marketing Research.

Z. John Zhang (Pricing Access Services) is an Associate Professor of Marketing at the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. He has a Ph.D. in History and Sociology of Science from University of Pennsylvania and also a Ph.D. in economics from University of Michigan. He formerly taught at the John M. Olin School of Business at Washington University in St. Louis and at Columbia Business School. He has published numerous articles in Marketing Science, Management Science, the Journal of Marketing Research, the Journal of Economics and Management Strategy, and the Journal of Industrial Economics on target pricing and other pricing strategies, market entry, and retail management.